

EOS – THE LITERARY WEEK

The students of the Journal Committee of Dr. Ram Manohar Lohiya National Law University, Lucknow organized the first literary week, 'Eos'. The main objective of organizing this event was to explore the creativity of the students and provide them a forum to express their views and ideals pertaining to the world at large, and a platform to showcase their talents.

Eos, the Greek Goddess of Dawn, epitomizes the first ray of sunshine. The first ray of sunshine brings with it, hope for a new beginning, promises for a better tomorrow and oodles of joy. The Eos Literary week was a step towards that better tomorrow.

In order to live up to ideology of expressing ourselves, we have organized a series of events.

The essay writing was one of the main events. The objective of essay writing was to bring out the passion for writing, and broaden the perspective on pertinent issues that the students feel the need to address.

Poetry writing enables the students to give vent to their emotions and thoughts. It gives them an opportunity to appreciate the significance of the written word.

The short story competition and the picture composition opened the doors of creativity, love for the language and is a manifestation of experiences and observations.

The quiz contest, one of the highlights of the event was a test of the students' awareness pertaining to the events happening around us and their ability to think on their toes.

The photography competition gave people a forum to capture moments that leaves an indelible mark in their lives.

The debate provided an opportunity to vociferously voice one's opinions, suggestions and beliefs.

The event coverage was the fun element of Eos for people to give their take on the event in the form of videos, clippings, photographs, write-ups.

The Director of the University, Prof. Balraj Chauhan, congratulated the students for their effort in organizing the Literary Week. Much to the students' delight the prizes would be distributed by Professor Ranbir Singh, the former Vice- Chancellor of NALSAR and the present Vice-Chancellor of National Law Institute of Delhi.